With crumbling of Joint families and nuclear families becoming the norm due to migration of off-spring in search of livelihood etc, the brunt of old age is felt by elderly without any exception. The problems of old age are not just physical but also medical and psychological and all of them are interlinked. In the absence of personal grooming and attention paid to them, the recovery becomes slow compounding problems in the household. Of course, corona has made the lives of elderly more miserable and frustrating as they can't visit doctors for minor ailments and have to put up with the pain and discomfort for indefinite periods. However, the situation has forced the society to come up with several portals to offer help in this domain. The Amazon, Flipkart and Zomato have indeed inspired many to create several platforms for specific needs of society. There were people working in the domain of offering personal health care earlier, but there was always hesitation and suspicion in opting for such services by private individuals due to a variety of reasons including unprofessional ways, unreliability and even threat to the lives of lonely senior citizens.

Now, we have several platforms, to cater to the needs, which are well streamlined and professionally managed reining in the industry standards and accountability. There are different agencies specialised in offering different services. The good part is that the agencies take up the role of care givers ranging from offering mere physical help, physiotherapy, setting up of ICUs at home, getting medical tests done, providing medical equipment on rental basis to doctors attending home calls. The professionalism by the established agencies goes in a long way in offering mental peace to the off spring of elderly and also helps the ones in frail health, regardless of age, to recover faster.

In fact, the agencies can even provide baby sitters and maids for cooking etc to help career oriented young mothers. Further, they provide male and female health care givers for maintenance of health of the needy in the comfort of their own home.
